

46th Annual Magee Alumni Day

Program Schedule

Friday, October 15, 2021

Presenting virtually, via TEAMS

UPMC, Magee-Womens Hospital

Drs. Hutchinson and Hayashi Auditorium

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania

Overview

For this year's Magee Alumni Day program, we have an exciting line-up of speakers consisting of past and current faculty and former residents. The program will feature updates on clinical care over the entire age spectrum of our patients. We expect the program to present topics that pose challenging clinical, technical, ethical, and financial issues that today's OB/GYN often faces, whether in practice or in an academic career. The program features endowed lectures — the Cohen, McCall, OB/GYN Legacy, Katz Minimally Invasive Surgery, Kunschner Memorial lectures as well as the inaugural Steve N. Caritis Lecture.

Target Audience

This program is focused on health care practitioners in obstetrics and gynecology as well as in other primary care specialties.

Objectives

- Be able to identify changes in medical milieu and how that has impacted residency and fellowship surgical training, and methods to improve training.
- To review the evidence that maternal anti-fetal rejection occurs in patients with pregnancy complications and review placental pathology which supports the presence of the rejection.
- Describe how childbirth impacts the later development of pelvic floor disorders.
- Review conservative fibroid treatment options.
- Review and appreciate the past and current situation around COVID-19 and explore future implications.
- Review the most common vulvar dermatoses, lichen sclerosis, lichen planus and lichen simplex chornicus.
