The Division of Adolescent and Young Adult Medicine and University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine Center for Continuing Education in the Health Sciences, in collaboration with the Clinical and Translational Science Institute (CTSI) of the University of Pittsburgh invites you to our 8th Annual Adolescent and Young Adult Health Research Symposium.

The focus of this symposium will be on understanding the developmental and behavioral factors related to adolescent sexuality and sexual and reproductive health. We aim to:

- Discuss how practitioners can develop an understanding of adolescent sexuality and the unique reproductive and sexual health needs of adolescents and young adults.
- Discuss how to evaluate the evidence-base related to adolescent and young adult sexual and reproductive health care.
- Discuss how practitioners who care for adolescents may promote positive sexuality and evidence-based, comprehensive sexual health education.
